A fine of 2c. per day shall be imposed for every day a book is retained over two weeks. ## Interesting Wheat Items

Alberta Wheat Pool sold two cargoes of wheat to China on September 19th.

Spain's new wheat crop estimate is 180,000,000 bushels, as compared with 134,400,000 bushels last year.

Russian sowings of winter wheat were 16,300,000 acres on September 1st, as compared with 24,908,000 acres on the same date a year ago.

It is reported that nine shiploads of wheat have been sold to China from the Port of Vancouver. Three shiploads have already been shipped.

Stocks of wheat at Liverpool amount to only 1,264,000 bushels, as compared with 5,166,000 bushels at this time a year ago.

In China the wheat crop is smaller than last year in those districts involved in the foreign trade in wheat and flour.

Alberta wheat growers desiring to place their wheat in the 1932-33 pool, must designate their intention of so doing upon delivery of the wheat.

Rain and snow was fairly general in Alberta over the past week-end and heavy rain fell in northern Saskatchewan. Threshing was delayed as a consequence.

An official report from Australia states that the condition of the wheat crop there is generally good. Australia increased her wheat average materially this year, seedling some 18,000,000 acres.

The program was brought to a close with the promotion service for the children who passed into higher grades.

For Baby's Bath

More than that of any other member of the family, baby's tender, delicate skin needs the greatest care and attention. The soft, soothing oils in Baby's Own Soap make it specially suitable for babies, and its clinging fragrance reminds one of the roses of France which help to inspire it.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Construction of a Canadian legation building in Tokyo has been suggested to the Dominion government, but no decision has been reached.

Hugo Bilgram, 85, pioneer mechanical engineer, inventor, manufacturer, economist and oldest member of the Franklin Institute, is dead. He invented the best gear generating process.

Rumors that Japan was increasing her naval strength at Shanghai, as circulated in Chinese newspapers, brought a sweeping denial from the Japanese consulate.

The Aero Club of France has recognized Mayrse Hiltz as the maker of a new altitude record for women. August 19 she rose to a height of 31,900 feet.

Up to the end of July importations of United States anthracite for the seven months of the calendar year had declined 30 per cent, compared with the corresponding period last year.

Intimation that a new trade agreement between Canada and Belgium is being considered by both countries was given at Quebec, by J. Van Rieckstol, consul general for Belgium at Vancouver.

The Transient Problem

Fear Expressed That It May Produce a New Criminal Class

If the movement of unemployed transients from place to place is allowed to continue it will produce a new criminal class from which Canada has hitherto been practically free. This is one of the findings of the committee of the Canadian Bar Association on the administration of criminal justice, and forms part of the committee report.

To cope with the transient problem the committee recommends active enforcement of the vagrancy sections and other portions of the criminal code "which seem to have been held in abeyance."

Legislation which would impose on every community responsibility for the maintenance of indigents produced in that community should be passed without delay, the committee urges.

Despite prevalence of conditions which might be expected to lead to crime there was no marked increase in criminality in Canada, during the past year, the committee finds, Canadians had remained law-abiding.

World Court Is Fair

Smallest Nation Always Sure Of Getting Square Deal

The theory of the World Court and the League of Nations is that each nation has an equal say in the affairs, and equally certain of a square deal in any controversy. This was exemplified by the decision of the World Court handed down recently in a dispute between the small republic of Lithuania, and the mighty powers of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

On the main point, which had to do with whether Lithuania had the power to sack a particular state official, the Court decided in favor of the republic.

It is a good thing that the international tribunals get a chance to show their impartiality sometimes, because it is a lesson to the world at large, and an assurance to the small nations that their interests are properly taken care of and no favors shown the big fellows.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EVERY WOMAN FEELS SHE SHOULD HAVE A WOOLEN JACKET DRESS FOR FALL AND WINTER

Here's a beauty. The jacket-like blouse can be made in either of two ways. In the large sketch, the reversible, which is so generally becoming and popular is just as smart as can be. The miniature view shows it in a more severe collarless type that emphasizes the buttoned closing.

The skirt is attached to a camisole top. Inverted plaits at either side of the front, provide ample fullness.

A thumb-down tweed mixture made the original. You'll be delighted with its small coat.

It's so simple to fashion.

Wool crepe, soft machine-woolen and rough crepe silk are also suitable.

Style No. 840 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

End Lonely Vigil

Four Soviet Scientists Return From Bleak Arctic Wastes

Four Soviet scientists have ended a lonely two-year vigil in the bleak Arctic wastes of Northernland, during which their only contact with civilization was by radio. They have been relieved by four other observers, one of them a woman.

A brief wireless despatch from the icebreaker "Sibirskoi", now engaged in Arctic exploration, reports that the party of four, headed by the geographer, Ushviev, were taken aboard the icebreaker, had sent over.

The woman member of the replacement party is Irina Rusanova, who although she is only 30, is a veteran of polar expeditionary work. With three male colleagues she will spend the next two years at the four outposts, whose only human inhabitants will continue their explorations and mapping of Northernland.

The four men who are returning were reported to be in excellent health despite the difficulties of their assignment.

Air Transportation

U.S. Pilot Congratulates Canadian On Part Played In Establishing Civil Aviation

Air transportation and radio communication will play a great part in carrying out the policies agreed upon at the Ottawa Imperial Conference, according to William P. MacCracken, Jr., of Washington, D.C. He urged Canada to promote aviation to its utmost.

Speaking before a service club meeting in Calgary, Mr. MacCracken, who is honorary secretary of the American Bar Association, declared aviation and radio would play an important part in world affairs.

Mr. MacCracken is a pilot of distinction and was in Calgary attending the annual convention of the Canadian Bar Association. He paid tribute to the Canadian government in establishing civil aviation and to the aid which Canada rendered the United States, when it started organizing civil aviation six years ago.

Why Certain People Contract "Hay Fever"

Substance In Blood Makes Them Sensitive To Pollens

Old wives' fables flourish at the hay fever season. An article in the Medical Journal and Record proceeds to explode a score or so of false notions about the ailment.

No. 9 in "that hay fever occurs most often in well educated and intelligent people, and that it shows a special predilection for the so-called upper classes of society." In 1828 a London doctor could not find "a single unequivocal case among the poor." Fifty years later a New Yorker wrote that "Fifth Avenue is quite familiar with hay fever, while Five Points has not a case." The earlier error was doubtless due to the fact that people of means sought relief, while the poor went miserably about their business, sneezing and sniffing.

That hay fever has a special predilection for nervous types is equally false. In its choice of victims, the disease is thoroughly democratic, occurring "in the weak and the strong, the scrawny and the corpulent, the phlegmatic and the temperamental, those of large and those of small stature," etc.

The "hay fever subject has in his blood a sensitizing substance called reagin, which is specific for the particular pollen or pollens to which he is sensitive." Let some of that pollen blow his way and all his placidity or lack of wit cannot save him from displaying the hieary symptoms of hay fever.

In Search Of Happiness

Professor Einstein Believes Happiness Lies In Man Himself

Science is the only sure thing left to the world today, in the opinion of Professor Einstein, who recently terminated several weeks' stay at Oxford during which he lived the life of a University don at Christchurch.

"Politics have failed, they do no good and people are weary of them," he told an interviewer before his departure, "but science will always remain and advance."

But even science cannot bring us happiness, Professor Einstein believes. Nothing, he says, can do that. Happiness lies in man himself. He must make his own.

Appetizing Salads

This Healthful Addition To Menu Had Beginning In Early Roman Days

The very appetizing—one could almost say "beautiful"—salads which are served today had their beginning in early Roman days when the uncooked vegetables were eaten with salt sprinkled over them. Cress was brought to Rome from Persia and eaten with bread, and celery was raised by the Romans because its delicate green looked well in gardens! The ancestor of our modern lettuce and endive grew wild on the banks of the Mediterranean in ancient times.

Salads fell into disfavor for a time and many people, chiefly masculine, spoke slightly of salads as "rabbit fodder." There is nothing difficult about the preparation of a salad which has "appetite appeal." A salad, to be at its best should have a flavorful dressing carefully blended with the other ingredients and should be as cool and crisp as possible. Care should be taken to arrange the salad attractively and garnish it attractively. Salad may be prepared in the morning and kept in the refrigerator.

Fish or meat salads are nourishing for the main course, a fruit salad may be served in place of dessert and a vegetable salad is both healthful and appetizing in place of hot vegetables.

Most important of all is the salad dressing. While there are other types of dressing, two of the most popular are mayonnaise and boiled dressing. These two recipes can be made with evaporated milk which give them a rich smoothness and body. The Eggless Mayonnaise given is widely used because egg yolk is not needed.

EGGLESS MAYONNAISE

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup salad oil

Thoroughly mix dry ingredients. Add evaporated milk and blend thoroughly. Beat in salad oil gradually. Add vinegar or vinegar and lemon juice, beating until mixture is smooth. Makes one cup.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

—BY—

MARGARET FIEDLER

Author of
"The Splendid Polly," "The Hermit of Far End," Hodder & Moughton, Ltd., London.

A brief silence followed this announcement. Blaise was thinking, concentratedly. So Madame de Varigny, despite her French name and her French mannerisms, was an Italian! He might have guessed it from the possibility ever definitely presented itself to him—guessed it from those broad, high cheek bones, those liquid, southern-dark eyes, and the coarse, blue-black hair. Yet, except for one fleeting moment at Montanvau, the idea had never occurred to him, and it had then been so easily dispelled by Jean's explanation that the lapidary, sive-looking Cleopatra was the Comtesse de Varigny and her chaplain for the time being.

Italian! Blaise felt more convinced than ever now that Madame de Varigny's visit portended unpleasant developments. Something, a voice from the past, was about to break stridently on the peaceful present. He braced himself to meet the encounter whatever might be coming. Vaguely he foresaw some kind of blackmail, and he thanked Heaven for Jean's absolute understanding and complete knowledge of the past and of all that appertained to his first unhappy marriage. There would be little foothold here for an attempt at blackmail, however skillfully worked, he reflected gratefully.

He therefore responded civilly to Madame de Varigny's statement, apparently accepting it at its mere face value.

"I am surprised," he told her, "You have altogether the air of a Parisian." "The Countess smiled.

"Oh, I had a French grandmother," she returned carelessly. "Also, I have lived much in Paris."

"Ah! that explains it," replied Tormarin, leaning back in his chair as though satisfied. "It's the influence of environment and heredity, I expect."

He was fencing carefully, waiting for the woman to show her hand.

"I have also Corsican blood in my veins," pursued Madame de Varigny. Then, as Tormarin made no answer, she leaned forward and said intently: "Do you know the characteristic of the Corsicans, Monsieur Tor-marin?"

"They never forget revenge," her foreign accent increasing, as usual, with emotion of any kind. "The Corsicans always revenge."

"Yes? And you have something to repay? Is that it?"

"Yes, I have something to repay." "A revenge, in fact?"

She shook her head.

"No. I do not cut it revenge. It is punishment—the just punishment—earned by the man who married Nesta Freyne and brought her in return nothing but misery."

Tormarin rose abruptly.

"What have the affairs of Nesta Freyne to do with you?" he asked sternly. "As you are obviously aware, she was my wife. And I do not propose to discuss private personal matters with an entire stranger." He moved towards the door. "I think our interview can very well terminate at that. I do not wish to forget that I am your host."

"You are more than that," said Madame de Varigny, suavely. "You are my brother-in-law."

"What?" Tormarin swung round and faced her.

"Yes." The suavity was gone now, replaced by a curious deadly precision of utterance, enhanced by the foreign rendering of syllables. "I am—or was, until my marriage—Margherita Valdi. I am Nesta's sister."

Tormarin regarded her steadily.

"In that case," he said, "I will hear what you have to say. Though I don't think," he added, "that any good can come of raking up the past. It is better—forgotten."

"Forgotten?" Madame de Varigny seized upon the unlucky word. "Yes—it may be easy enough for you to forget—you who took Nesta's young, beautiful life and crushed it; you who came like a thief and stole from me the one creature in the whole world whom I love—my bambina, my little sister. Oh, yes!—her voice rose passionately—"easy enough when there is another woman—a new love—with whom your life and your life are over again! But I tell you, you shall not! There shall be no new beginning for you—no marriage with this Jean Peterson to whom you are now fiancée. I forbid it!"

Blaise stemmed the torrent of her speech with an authoritative gesture.

"May I ask how the news of my engagement reached you?" he asked, his cool, dispassionate question falling like a hailstone dropped into some molten stream of lava.

"I have kept watch. I have the means of knowing. There is very little that has happened to you since I wrote to you of Nesta's death," she stammered a little over the words, and Blaise, despite his anger, was conscious of a sudden flash of sympathy for her—"very little that I have not known. And this—your engagement, I knew of. That when it was barely a week old."

"I'm really curious to know why my affairs should be of such surpassing interest to you, my engagement, for instance—how did you hear of it?"

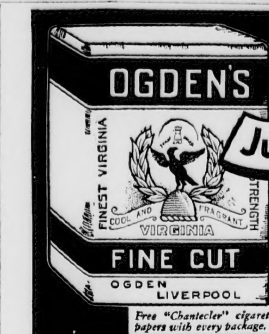

"Oh, that was easy," contemptuously. "There was another man who loved your Mees Peterson—this Monsieur Burke. I used him. I knew he was afraid that you might win her, and I told him that if ever you became engaged he must come and tell me, and I would show him how to make sure that you should never marry her. Oh! That was very simple."

"I'm afraid you promised more than you can afford to perform. I grant that you have every reason to dislike me—hate me, if you will. I acknowledge, too, that I was to blame, miserably to blame, for Nesta's unhappiness—as much in fault as she herself. But there is nothing gained at this late hour by apportioning the blame. We each made bad mistakes—and we have each had to pay the price."

"Yours has been a very light price—comparatively," she commented with intense bitterness.

"Do you think so?"

Something in the quiet, stilted, brittle quality of the brief question brought her glance swiftly, curiously, back to his face. It was as though, behind those four short words, she could feel the intolerable pressure of years of endurance. For a moment she seemed to waver, then, as though she had deliberately pushed the impression aside, she laughed disagreeably.

"Too light to satisfy her sister, at any rate?"

Tormarin froze.

"It is fortunate, then, that my ultimate fate does not lie in your hands," he observed.

"But that is just where it does lie—in the palm of my hand—there?"

She flung out one shapely hand, palm upward, and pointed to it with the other.

"And now—see—I close my hand—so..."

And this beautiful marriage of which you have dreamed, your marriage with Mees Peterson—it does not take place."

"Are you mad?" asked Blaise contemptuously, experiencing all an Englishman's distaste for this display of unforced drama.

She shook her head.

"No," she said quietly. "I am not mad."

The air of theatricality seemed to fall suddenly away from her, leaving her a stern and sombre figure, invested with an intrinsic atmosphere of tragedy, filled with one sentiment only—the thirst for vengeance.

"No. I am not mad. I am telling you the truth. You can never marry Jean Peterson, because Nesta—your wife—still lives."

Tormarin fell back a pace. For one moment he believed the woman had gone genuinely mad—that by dint of long brooding upon how she might most hurt and punish the Englishman whom she had never forgiven for marrying her sister, she had evolved from a half-crazed mind the belief that Nesta still lived and that thus she would be able to prevent his marriage with any other woman.

And then, looking into those gleaming soft brown eyes with the gentle hardness in their depths, he could see the light of reason burning steadily within them.

Madame de Varigny was quite sane, as sane as he was himself. And if so...

A great fear came upon him—the fear of a man who dimly senses the approach of some appalling danger and knows that it will find him utterly defenceless.

"Do you know what you are uttering?" he demanded, his voice roughened and uneven.

"Yes, I know. Nesta is alive," she repeated simply.

"Alive?"

The word was wrung from him, hardly more than a hoarse whisper of sound. He swung round upon her violently.

"But you yourself wrote and told me of her death?" She nodded placidly.

"Yes, I wrote it."

"But the official information? We had that, too, later from the French police, confirming your account. You had better be careful about what you are telling me," he added sternly.

"I won't answer now."

"The need for lying is past," she answered with the most absolute candour. "The French police wrote quite truthfully all they knew. They had found the body of a suicide, whom I identified as my sister. To strengthen matters I bribed someone I knew also to identify the dead girl as Nesta. She was a married woman, too, the poor little dead one! So it was quite simple. And I took Nesta home—home to Chateau Varigny. I had married by then. But she had learned of my marriage through friends in Italy and wrote to me from there, telling me of my misery with you and begging me to succour her. So I went to Italy and brought her back with me to Varigny. Then I planned that you should believe her dead. It was all very simple," she repeated complacently.

"But what was your object in all this? Why did you scheme to keep me in ignorance? What was your purpose?"

"Why?" Her voice deepened suddenly, the placid satisfaction with which she had narrated the carrying out of her plan disappearing from it completely. "Why? I did it to punish you—first for stealing my Nesta from me and then because, after you had stolen her, you brought her nothing but misery and heart-break. She was so young—so young! And you, with your hideous temper and your cold, formal English way—you broke her heart, bowed her, crushed her!"

"She was old enough to coquette with every man she met," came grimly between Tormarin's teeth. "No husband—English or Italian, least of all Italian—would have endured her conduct."

"She would not have played with other men if you had loved her. She was all fire. And you—you were like a wet log that will not burn!" She gestured fiercely. "You never loved her! It was in a moment of passion—of desire that you married her!"

But you were sure, eventually, to meet some other woman and learn what love—real love—is. So I waited. And when I saw you at Montanvau with Jean—I knew that the day I had waited for so long would come at last. I knew that your punishment was ready to my hand."

"Do you mean"—Blaise spoke in curiously measured accents—"do you mean that you deliberately concealed the fact that Nesta still lived so that

"So that you should not marry the woman that you loved when the time came? Yes, I planned it all! I kept Nesta safely hidden at Varigny, and I made little changes in her appearance—a woman can, you know—mockingly—"the colour of her hair, the way of dressing it. Oh, just little changes, so that if by chance she was seen in the street by anyone who had known her as your wife she would not easily be recognized. Oh—once more with that exasperating complacency at her own skill in deception—"I thought of every little detail."

Tormarin stood listening to her silently, like a man in a trance. His face had grown drawn and haggard, and his eyes burned in their sockets. Once, as she poured out her story of trickery and deception, she heard him mutter dazedly: "Jean... Jean..." and the anguish in his voice might have moved any woman to pity save only one who was utterly and entirely obsessed with the desire for vengeance.

But the intolerable suffering which had suddenly lined his face and rimmed his mouth with tiny beads of sweat was meat and drink to her. She glowered in it. This was her hour of triumph after the long years of waiting.

She smiled at him blandly.

"I think I have behaved well," she pursued. "I might have waited till you were actually married. But I have no wish to punish the little Jean. She, at least, is 'on the square,' as you say—though it would have revenged me. Nesta well had. I waited. You ruined Nesta's life; I could have ruined the life of the woman you love. I did think of it. Ah! You would have suffered then, knowing that the Jean you worshipped was neither wife nor maid, but—"

"Be silent, woman!"

It is usually easy to say that when a child is pale, sickly, peevish and restless, the cause is worms. These parasites range the stomach and intestines, causing serious disorders of the digestion and preventing the infant from deriving sustenance from food. Miller's Worm Powders, by destroying the worms, correct the faults of the digestion and serve to restore the organs to healthy action.

Glowgram For Theatres Can Be Read In The Dark

Theatres and cinemas will soon provide a new type of programme—called a glowgram—which may be read in the dark. Glowgrams are black collaphane, non-rustle, non-inflammable sheets with the printing in transparent type. All you have to do is to raise them so that the light of the stage or screen is behind them. The writing is then perfectly legible. They are a British invention.

Worms sap the strength and undermine the vitality of children. Strengthen them by using Mother Graves Worm Extirminator to drive out the parasites.

"Three Good, Healthy Reasons" for Praise

"I have three good, healthy reasons for praising the use of BABY'S OWN TABLETS—two lovely boys and a girl, all of whom have been greatly benefited by the Tablets during babyhood," writes Mr. Judson Miller, Manchester, N.B.

"I have used BABY'S OWN TABLETS were used there would be fewer sick babies," writes Mrs. Lewis Weldon, Monmouth, N.B.

Pains In Stomach and Bowels So Bad Would Have To Sit Down

Mrs. C. Landry, Moncton, N.B., writes:—"I can certainly recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for cramps or pains in the stomach and bowels."

"Last Summer I had such awful pains in my stomach and lower part of my bowels, at times, I would have to sit down. I took Dr. Fowler's and was soon relieved."

"When my children were small I always kept a bottle in the house and it has helped them wonderfully whenever any of them had bowel complaints."

Trying to Strengthen High School Studies

The Inisfail school board has made a strong appeal to parents of pupils to rigidly restrict the number of social functions in which the pupils engage, and this appeal could be well applied to other High Schools.

"As parents, you, of course, have the true interests of your children at heart, even more than the teachers can possibly have, but we feel that many of you have not realized the extent to which plays, dances, etc. interfere with the progress of your children. Not only do these things turn the minds of the pupils from their work, but often boys and girls come to school too much exhausted to work efficiently."

Tax Collections.

Collection of taxes in municipal districts has become vitally necessary in order that schools may be kept open. There are other necessities of municipal government, but the major and most immediate burden is the continuance of school facilities. This problem is demanding drastic measures in some districts in order that collections may be made.

Though reluctant to cause distress to anyone, the councillors of the districts are obliged to fulfil the duties for which they were elected to office, and to raise sufficient funds that children may attend school. The method adopted should cause neither personal enmity nor hostility, but should be accepted as a necessity of the times.

There is no doubt that over a period of years there has been considerable laxity in tax collections. Many who were able to pay in the good years, failed to do so, and the result is a burden of arrears that puts any municipal district in poor financial standing, making it difficult, if not impossible, for the governing body to finance.

This year conditions have reached such a point that collections must be made if schools are to keep open. No taxpayers feel but that their children must have school privileges. Therefore, it is the duty of every taxpayer to view the matter of tax collecting fairly, and make some substantial payment on his taxes. Only in this manner can the most necessary facilities be maintained.

The councils are functioning for the benefit of their municipalities. Possibly, in the past, they have shown too great a leniency, which has increased present difficulties. While any action which they may take will be just and reasonable, it must also inevitably be decisive and must bring results.

Canada's total export of bacon and ham for August was 3,857,000 lbs., valued at $424,777, according to a report issued recently by the Dominion bureau of statistics. Excepting July it was the highest in any month of the past twelve. Gt. Britain took 3,627,500 lbs.; Newfoundland 80,000 lbs. and United States 84,200 lbs., the United Kingdom taking 4,168,800 lbs.

"Unless something unforeseen happens, Western Canada Professional Hockey League will be reorganized within the next week, the group being launched with clubs representing five centres." Lloyd Turner, owner of the Calgary franchise stated Tuesday afternoon. The centre of Regina has been holding up matters for the last two weeks, but Turner stated that "it looks as if we've got Regina all set." Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw are ready to go and will make up the five-team circuit with Regina.

The Fifth Fight.

George Sidney's & Charlie Murray's Latest Contretemps.

The Cohens and Kellys are at it again! Need more be said?

Again Universal brings to the screen this famous comedy team that has become a more permanent fixture in the public's laugh-locker than such noted combinations as Weber & Fields, McIntyre & Heather Potash & Perimeter—George Sidney & Charlie Murray.

Jewish George Sidney and Irish Charlie Murray, friends on the screen, in life, until death, invade Hollywood in this chuckle-whirl of humorous situations, which will appear at the Didsbury Opera House next Monday and Tuesday. Fame, wealth and luxury drenched upon them in such a sweep that they, both "go Hollywood" with a vengeance.

Can their warm and enduring friendship, that has come through the hilarious vicissitudes of Paris, Atlantic City, Scotland and Africa, survive for the other pictures of this funny series, can their friendship bear the strain of the world's most volatile and eccentric city?

How will Kelly act in a Roll-Royce?

How will Cohen manage the intricacies of a dinner jacket?

When success comes to Kelly and the passes Cohen by, and the tables are turned, will they high-bat each other as Holly wood goes to their heads?

When "The Cohens & Kellys in Hollywood" comes to the Opera House next week, see this limrick of big laughs and answer your own questions with a gale of sidesplitting laughter, it's coming to you.

Canada's gold production in 1931 reached the new high total of 2,682,750 ounces valued at $45,457,900. This is 27.5 per cent above the 1930 production. Of this total the province of Ontario accounted for 2,079,752 ounces valued at $42,992,288.

New Brunswick can now claim the rare distinction of producing a white squirrel. The animal was caught by Jack Pelsing of Fredericton who trapped it near the village of Lincoln. It has been bought by the government and will be mounted and placed on exhibition.

Daylight saving time, common to Quebec and Ontario provinces May 1, occasioned little confusion on Canadian Pacific travel. Travelers have nowdays learned that the railways remain on standard time and govern themselves accordingly. The railway announced a number of train time alterations prior to the introduction of daylight saving.

National Advisory Council To Direct Co-ordination Of Agricultural Services In Canada

Denial and provincial agricultural officials at Toronto, concentrated on a study of the livestock industry to find ways of making it pay better dividends to the Canadian farmer.

The conference, called by Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, also considered the establishment of a national advisory council to direct co-ordination of agricultural services throughout the Dominion. Such a council would co-operate with the national research council already in existence, explained Mr. Weir.

Samuel E. Todd, secretary of the Industrial Council of the Canadian Meat Packers' Association, told the 100 delegates that henceforth the packing houses of this country will permit government inspectors to inspect hog carcasses "on the rail" in the abattoirs. The practice will help Canada meet Danish competition in the United Kingdom market, it is expected. For some time Danish bacon producers have had the advantage of government inspection in the killing plant, while inspection in Canada has been "on the hoof."

The job of agricultural officials and farmers, it was agreed, is to take full advantage of the 280,000,000 pounds bacon quota offered Canada by the United Kingdom, a quota much greater than the total annual production of Canada for 1931.

The conference also tackled the problem of marketing beef. Dean A. M. Shaw of the University of Saskatchewan, called attention to the market for finished beef in the United Kingdom, and pointed out that wheat is an ideal finishing feed for cattle.

"There is just as much opportunity for the sale of comparatively poor quality cattle in certain markets as there is for the highly finished animal" preferred in the big London stores," he added.

Dean Shaw declared continuity of supply was an even more important requirement than quality in the United Kingdom market, because dealers supplying the trade there could not afford to disappoint or lose their customers.

Irish Free State competition is at a standstill for the moment, said Dean Shaw, but he felt sure Irish cattle would come to the fore again sooner or later.

The conference set up a special committee to consider beef marketing, with the following members: Dean Shaw, Prof. J. C. Stoddard of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; J. H. Evans, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba; R. S. Hamer and P. E. Light, of the Dominion Livestock Branch, Ottawa. Hon. Robert Weir suggested that provincial agriculturalists form advisory committees of their own to discuss their own problems from an administrative standpoint and from the standpoint of extension. "They will also," he explained, "bring up in these committees questions of further research into the difficulties and problems affecting the progress of agriculture in that province."

In many cases, however, said Mr. Weir, other provinces might have identical problems. "Are they going to endeavor to solve them themselves or co-operate with other provincial and federal interests?" he asked.

"There must be some one to whom they submit it to see if the problem is really provincial or national, also to ascertain what information in respect to it is already available. That is my idea of what this national advisory council should do."

"My wife runs her new machine splendidly; never speeds so fast she can't stop within a foot or two; always pays attention to her wheel, never starts one way, and then without reason turns off in another direction, throws her way around corners perfectly."

"She? It's a saving machine."

Doctors' Opinion On

Alcohol As Medicine

Beneficial In Some Diseases But Injurious In Others

Alcohol has been found beneficial in treating some diseases but injurious in others by Dr. Harold E. Hinrich and Dr. Louis H. Nahum, of the Yale medical school.

Results of their study showing that alcohol increases the acidity of the blood to points formerly believed incompatible with life were made public at the international congress of the Federation of Societies for Experimental Biology held at New Haven, Conn.

In diseases such as tetany, where the blood contains an abnormal amount of alkaline substances, the scientists determined the acidity of alcohol acts as a neutralizing agent. Small doses of alcohol were found to be helpful in treating diabetes, for they counteract the effects of partially oxidized fatty acids.

On the other hand, the research showed administration of alcohol to pneumonia patients delays recovery by increasing acidity.

The "hangover" following intoxication, they concluded is caused by the accumulation and persistence of lactic acid in the blood. This substance, which does not disappear as quickly as the alcohol, also is found after strenuous physical exercise and is believed responsible for a feeling of fatigue after hard work.

Advice To Agriculturists

Says Man On The Land Fails To Grasp Best Methods Of Farming

Leading speakers before the national agricultural conference in Toronto, agreed that agricultural services should render more direct assistance to the Canadian farmer.

In a dozen committees efforts were being made to whip into shape definite recommendations to the Federal and provincial governments for co-ordination of governmental and other services. The indications were that every proposal would be debated by the conference as a whole.

Farmers are not doing "half as well as they know how," the conference was told by Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College. They fail to grasp the idea that there is a best method of farming, he said, but they need help so desperately that agricultural officials must find more effective means of giving them expert assistance.

Here is a complete photographic record of the great show put on by the two great celestial stars, Old Sol and Luna. Many astronomers who came from all parts of the world were denied a view like this owing to the presence of clouds. At the top left is a picture of the complete eclipse while various phases are shown in the rest of the picture. The picture at the lower left shows President Hoover as he watched the phenomenon from the parlor of the White House. The picture at lower right is an interesting shot made during totality. ## Damp and Tough Grain May Now Be Dried Without Damage To Its Milling and Baking Qualities

Canada need not again suffer the losses sustained when the percentage of tough and damp grain in the crops of 1925 to 1928 reached unprecedented heights ranging from 28.6 to 50.8 and the cash deductions to Canadian farmers totalled millions of dollars.

Artificial drying of wheat was one of the first problems to which the National Research Council's Associate Committee on Grain Research set its hand. In 1929 a report was issued which so set out the conditions of correct artificial drying that practically all causes of complaint against Canadian grain on the score of damage incurred during drying were removed. There has now been issued a comprehensive document of 104 printed pages, which confirms the specifications laid down in the first report, clears up a number of additional points and demonstrates what conditions contribute to the efficiency of commercial driers. Damp and tough grain may now be dried without damage to its milling and baking quality.

Included in the present report are discussions of a small-scale experimental drier designed for the study of the limits of safety in drying with regard to a number of factors, and extent of drying in both continuous and batch drying of wheat. Other aspects of the problem discussed are factors in continuous drying; drying in cold weather, drying in two stages, drying with humidified air, excessive drying, invisible loss in drying, atmospheric humidity in relation to grain drying, weight per bushel in relation to drying and the nature of injury caused by heat drying.

In three important appendices are discussions of observations made in commercial driers in Vancouver with suggestions for improved operation, a review of the literature on the bin drying of wheat (drying by natural ventilation; drying by forced, unheated air; drying by forced heated air and "sweating") and the influence of heat treatment on the baking behaviour of flour is determined by different baking formulas.

Copies of the appendix containing the review of the literature on the bin drying of wheat have been made available separately.

In making the investigations involved the committee developed a system of dividing all samples of grain tested into three or four parts and checking the milling and baking results independently in three or four laboratories, using methods which were carefully standardized by frequent consultation and comparison. It was considered important not to draw any far-reaching conclusions which might mean millions of dollars one way or the other to the grain growers and the grain trade, without verifying results in more than one laboratory. The system inaugurated in this, the first large co-operative undertaking of the Associate Committee on Grain Research, has been followed in all later work, and has had the effect of inspiring confidence in published conclusions of the Committee.

The authors of the report now published are E. Stanfield, Chief Chemical Engineer of the Research Council of Alberta, and Dr. W. H. Cook, Junior Research Biologist, National Research Laboratories.

While it is believed that the two reports published cover most of the practical points which are likely to arise from the viewpoint of the operators of commercial driers, there remain some points of scientific interest which are being made the subject of fundamental studies. For example it will be of interest to know more about the nature of the changes occurring in wheat exposed to heat, as in the drying process, and what it is that under certain conditions leads to impairment of baking quality. These studies will be published in due course in the form of scientific papers and may easily help in unexpected ways in handling the practical problem of wheat drying to still better advantage. Dr. Robert Newton, Director of the Division of Biology and Agriculture, National Research Laboratories, comments: "It is impossible to assess in advance the value of fundamental research. All we know is that the more completely we understand any process, the more likely are we to be able to guide it to suit our own ends most effectively."

Hunters Go After Big Game Landed With a Camera

During mid-summer the organizing of hunting parties is carried on at many points in the Rockies, and by the first of September the trek of sportsmen to the best game haunts takes place. Splendid trophies may be secured of mountain sheep, goats, caribou, moose, bear and deer, but the modern hunter is becoming more and more an addict to the camera, either still or movie. Instead of returning with a load of heads, he contents himself with far more convincing records of his hunting prowess in the form of films. The camera hunter has the double satisfaction in knowing that the subject might have fallen an easy victim to his modern high-powered rifle, but still lives, free to enjoy life in its chosen haunts.

Machine Invented To Skin The Fish Before Canning

Now even the salmon are getting skinned! An invention by W. F. Schlotman and his brother James, of Kelowna, Alaska, skin salmon preparatory to canning them. Little information on the machine has been given out by the brothers pending patents. Some 20,000 cans of salmon have been used so far this season with the new machine, and the inventive brothers see great things in their brainchild.

Mountain View Notes

Mrs. A. M. Nisbet, Hugh and Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Towers, Nisbet, and Mr. and Mrs. Rae Armstrong, of Olds, were visitors in the district on Sunday.

Word was received from Cornwall, England last week, of the sudden death of Rev. H. H. Welford, rector for several years of St. Martin's, Calgary, and was also known by many in the Didsbury district.

Mr. Spencer, who conducted the services in Community Hall during the summer, left last Monday for Toronto to resume his studies. He took the opportunity, while in the west, of visiting points in B.C. and was greatly impressed with Banff and the colossal Rockies. This being his first trip so far west, he endeavored to see as much as possible, as his ordination takes place next year and he expects to remain in the east.

Threshing looks as though it may be a long drawn out job this fall and makes one think—

Oh to be a farmer in the west, No matter how he tries his very best. Along comes the rain

To toughen up his grain.

Oh to be a farmer in the west,

Oh to be a farmer this fall,

When his thinking, porforce, must be "fall".

In come the bills

And there's anything but thrills,

Oh to be a farmer this fall.

To Breed Successfully Two Litters a Year

Data compiled at the Dominion Experimental Station at Lacombe shows that it requires, on an average, approximately one ton of grain to carry a sow raising one litter per year through a twelve-month period. It requires an average of 2,300-lbs. to carry a sow raising two litters for the same length of time. This includes feed for the young pigs until weaning time, at eight weeks of age. Taking the average size of litters produced as seven, it can be seen that with the sow raising one litter per year it takes 286-lbs. of grain mixture to produce a weanling pig. When two litters are farrowed yearly the amount of grain mixture fed is reduced to 143-lbs. at weaning. To put it another way: if the grain mixture fed is worth one cent per lb. the feed cost of the first pig at weaning time will be $2.86, while that of the other pig will be $1.43. This calculation does not take into consideration the service fee, labor cost of caring for the pigs, interest on the investment, nor the depreciation.

In order to raise two litters of pigs a year successfully, it is necessary to so arrange the farrowing dates in the spring and fall that the pigs while young will not be subjected to severe weather conditions. Fall pigs should not be farrowed after September 15th. If farrowed later they will not have sufficient time to become well started before cold weather sets in. To obtain two litters per year, sows should be bred during the months of November and May to obtain late February, March, August, or September litters, as the gestation period of the pig is roughly four months, or approximately 112 days. By keeping a careful service record the breeder will be able to determine quite accurately when to expect the pigs, and make arrangements accordingly.

A sow that comes under the two-litter-a-year plan, must, of a necessity, work harder than the sow that raises but one litter during the year and should therefore be particularly well fed after weaning to get her on the upgrade again before breeding her. The sow gaining in weight at breeding time is more liable to get with pig at first service and is more likely to produce a large, strong litter.

While some sows will produce two litters a year throughout their lives, others will only successfully produce one litter yearly. At Lacombe an attempt is made to follow as closely as possible the policy of raising three litters from each sow every two years. This is a good average and will probably meet the requirements of most farmers and show the best net profits in the end.
